

WOMEN TO CONTINUE UNION FEE PAYMENT

The Women's Union will continue to pay one dollar per member per year to support the McGill Students' Union until a new system is organized by the Students' Executive Council, it was decided at the final open meeting of the year of the Women's Union in RVC yesterday.

"Women now pay $1.00 instead of $3.50," said Sarah Snell, explaining the motion. "This is unfair and will have to be changed with the completion of a new union."

While binding themselves to payment of the sum until such a change is made, the Women's Union moved that the article calling for such payment be deleted from the constitution.

Rosalind Corneblum, vice-president, was in the chair since the president, Joan Caplan, was unable to be present. In her report, she said the executive had decided to install a soft-drink machine in RVC, and to start a new awards system.

Miss Snell gave the treasurer's report — "rather a gobbledy-goop," as she put it, since half of the fees won't come in until May. They will be used at the start of next year. Reports on other Women's activities were given by committee chairmen.

Candidates running for positions in the Women's Union were introduced at the meeting, and those running for M.W.S.A.A. president and Women's Union president each gave a brief talk outlining their platforms.

Schatia-Blicker Team Meet Smith-Ostroff In Debating Finals

Norm Samuels, chairman of the A.S.U.S. Novice Debating Tournament, announced that the championship debate in this series will take place today at 1 pm in the W. M. Stewart room of the Union.

Dave Schatia and Stan Blicher will uphold the topic: "Resolved that the United Nations should send troops into the Middle-East to insure the peace there." — The negative will be taken by Stuart Smith and Geraldine Ostroff. Both teams are the only ones to survive the elimination tournament without a loss, and the cup they will be vying for is the only one given at McGill for novice teams.

The debate, which is the last in A.S.U.S. season will be judged by a panel of veteran debaters.

Social Highlight Of Newman Club

The St. Patrick's Dance, one of the Newman Club's biggest social events of the year will take place on Saturday, March 17th at Newman House, 3484 Peel St.

The dance, organized by Liz Coffey, social chairman, will feature many attractions including an Irish band and a "kick line."

MEMORIAL PRIZE AVAILABLE

The J. M. Rutherford Memorial Prize of $100 is offered annually for some original work or study undertaken by a student of the University, on his own initiative, preferably outside the regular work for his or her degree. Candidates may be nominated by any member of the University staff or may apply in writing directly to the Registrar, submitting evidence of their qualifications.

Application or nominations must reach the Registrar not later than April 1st. The award will be made by the University Scholarships Committee. Students registered in the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research are not eligible to compete for this Prize.

PRESS CLUB SCHOLARSHIP

The Montreal Branch, Canadian Women's Press Club Scholarship in journalism is open to women students in any faculty at McGill University, including Macdonald College, who are spending at least another year at the University.

The qualifications are high academic standing and definite ability in writing. Preference will be given to students who intend to make journalism a career and have taken an active interest in student publications.

The scholarship is restricted to Canadian citizens.

Application should be made by letter to the Registrar on or before April 1st.

T. H. Matthews,
Registrar.

Fee Increase for Free Athletics

No Quorum, No Decision

S.A.C. HEAD

Peter Abbott

Peter Rehok

by Bryna Feingold

Yesterday's Students' Society meeting, the fifth called for the session 1955-56, turned into what one speaker called the "Monday Luncheon Discussion Group" when the lack of a quorum prevented decision on the proposed motion.

In a subsequent statement to the Daily, Av Cohen, President of the Students' Society, stated his doubt as to whether a referendum could be held, in view of the lack of time before the official cessation of activities for the term.

The motion in full reads:

We, the Students of McGill University, hereby request the University Authorities to raise the Athletic fee by $3.50 per student. In return for this the student would receive the following benefits:—

1. Free admission to all Football games.
2. Free admission to all Hockey games.
3. Free admission to Athletics Nights.
4. Free admission to all other University Athletic events.
5. Free admission to Pep Rallies.
6. Free admission to Tea Dances.

We feel that extra benefits would be derived from increased attendance and more spirit at all athletic events.

We also request that the Students' Athletic Council be made fully responsible for Athletics Nights, the Band, Cheerleaders, and Awards, and, therefore, should receive $3.00 of this raise.

The University would receive the remaining $0.50 which would fully cover all losses incurred.

SAC Head Speaks

Peter Abbot, Chairman of SAC, illustrated why he was in favor of the fee raise. He questioned the difference between paying $3.50 to SAC and paying $3.50 to the Union, which "most students do not use and do not care to use." He claimed the raise would be a step towards eliminating student apathy, which was "well evidenced by the lack of a quorum present."

Les Jonas, Union President, made a point of the fact that a difference existed between paying money for athletics and for the Union. "At sports events you are spectators, while at the Union you are participants," he stated. Jonas mentioned that students were already paying $15 to Athletics.

Phil De Zwirek, B. Comm. 2, spoke for the fee raise. He stated that anyone who argued against the motion would claim that the majority was paying for the benefit of the minority. "But," he continued, "the same situation exists in the paying of the $15, which we now give."

"More students participate in athletics than in any club at McGill. The whole University will benefit from this raise, as a person holding a ticket to an event will be more likely to go than a person who has to buy a ticket", De Zwirek said. "The minority is being a selfish minority."

Value Judgement

Mike Fish, B. Arch. 6, stated that there was "a bit of a value judgement before us today, affecting the future of athletics at McGill."

Fish enumerated the benefits that would be derived from the $3.50 fee raise, among which were better relations between McGill and the public at large, and a possible increase of enthusiasm on the part of the athletic teams, which would result in a greater percentage of victories for McGill.

The raise, Fish said, would provide the SAC with bargaining power, which would allow that organization some power and say as to how athletics are run at McGill.

"The raise is a step in the right direction, and any confusing of an increase in this field with the payment of SEC fees is only confusing the issue."

Edward Brown, B. Eng. 2, stated that the issue was too big to be decided by 300 students.

EXPERTS TO ADDRESS FRANKLIN SOCIETY

The Franklin Society will conclude another year of activities with two talks to be given on Thursday, March 8, and Friday, March 16.

The first is by the vice-president, Arthur Mansfield, who last year spent seven months in the Arctic carrying out research work on the walrus. He will show a film made while working with two Disney photographers who are preparing a nature film of the region.

The scientific aspects of the problems in this field of marine biology will also be presented. This talk is the second in a series on eastern arctic investigations that is being presented by members of the government research vessel "Calanus" who are present or former students of McGill.

The second talk will be given by Dr. T. Tozer, GSC, who is the

JOACHIM AND NEWMARK IN SCOPE RECITAL

The Scope Committee of the SEC will sponsor a recital by the well-known cellist, Walter Joachim, and John Newmark, pianist in Redpath Hall on Friday, March 9.

Graduate and Undergraduate students at McGill will be admitted free of charge upon presentation of library cards. The public will be charged a $1.00 admission fee.

Mr. Joachim has had a wide and extensive career ranging from a four-year period in which he was first cellist in the Cologne Chamber Orchestra under such conductors as Richard Strauss, Hermann Scherchen, and Igor Stravinsky, to being the teacher of a master class for cellists at the National Conservatory in Shanghai.

He is now first cellist of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra and has been frequently heard on radio and seen on television.

Mr. Newmark is perhaps best known as an accompanist. Since his arrival in Montreal, he has appeared with Alexander Brott and Roland Leduc and has also accompanied such artists as Kathleen Ferrier, Elisabeth Schumann, Richard Tucker, George London, and Adolph Busch. He has, in addition, made a number of records with Kathleen Ferrier one of which was awarded the French Grand Prix du Disque in 1952.

Forge Literary Works Receive Praise

McGill's only literary magazine, Forge, published by students, is now on sale at selected places throughout the campus. This edition offers a wide selection of short stories, essays, and poetry, as presented by twenty-three contributors.

The amount and value of material has impressed such literary critics as Dr. Beresford-Howe and Professor Louis Dudek. Forge's poetic contributions have drawn the following comment from Prof. Dudek, "Something extraordinary seems to be happening at McGill." Dr. Beresford-Howe stated that "there is a morning freshness about this year's Forge which intrigues."

Material by such prominent student writers as Len Cohen, John Lachs, and Ruth Roskies, highlight this edition. These contributors have been termed "a very genuine poet," "has a very impressive firmness," and "a genuinely gifted writer" respectively.

Forge has a wide literary range to suit every taste, and is available to-day only, at a cost of twenty-five cents.

Editorial

YOUTHFUL NOSES

The Department of External Affairs of the Students' Executive Council of McGill University is a mouth-filling title indeed. It is also another example of an infectious disease of McGill students — student pomposity.

McGill students are in the general sense young men and women involved in the difficult process of becoming mature and reasonable persons. They are seldom mature and even more seldom reasonable. This is a manifestation of youth and certainly cannot be complained of. Yet by attempting to cover this up with the trappings of pompous dignity they are merely accentuating their youth. Our Students' Council has even a Committee on Ideas whose task is the survey and analyses of Ideas. No special Ideas are mentioned or required, just any old Idea that happens to be wandering about the campus.

Recently we received a letter from the august typewriter of a minor student officer. The letter ended, "Devotedly yours". This student has never even met us and why he should be devoted to us we cannot imagine. We hope he had as much trouble creating the letter as we did in deciphering his elegant phrases. The majority of student letters, especially those termed "official", resound with such second-hand Churchillian fervour that only the date and address are written in straight-forward style.

We should above all keep in mind that we are students. We are, in the main, at McGill to learn. The SEC is not McGill's answer to Parliament and should not act as such. The world is not waiting breathlessly for the profound utterances of SEC's Department of External Affairs. The men-children letter writers of the campus are replying to a simple query on a simple problem not writing a didactic essay for posterity to marvel at.

Little girls flouncing about in their mother's high heels not only look silly but are remarkably liable to trip and fall on their youthful noses.

OF POGO AND THE CBC

Amid the welter of mail that is delivered to the Daily offices each day, we can usually find something to amuse us and/or provide us with editorial material. However, today's delivery has proven exceedingly barren.

After sorting through mounds of bills, magazines, newspapers from other colleges, and news releases, we found only three items that seemed even slightly helpful.

The first was a letter from the CBC, informing us that the Toronto telephone number of the CBC has been changed. We pondered this information for some time, but finally came to the conclusion that, while it seemed a good idea, we weren't quite qualified to take a stand on the matter.

The second was a neat, white booklet from the Bank of Canada: "Annual Report of the Governor to the Minister of Finance." We spent some time reading this, but finally gave it up also.

The third item was a letter from Walt Kelly, containing the news that Pogo would again be running for election to the United States Presidency. It promised us advance publicity, news releases, pictorial coverage of the campaign, and "I Go Pogo" buttons for our distribution. We mulled this over for quite some time also, and were just about to come down with an inspiration when we remembered that The Daily is not supposed to take a stand on extra-University political issues.

So we are in a not-particularly-unusual dilemma: we have nothing to say, and 300 words to say it in.

OXFORD NEWSLETTER

by John Fraser

The bar in the Oxford Union was crowded when the President walked in and climbed upon the counter. In his hands were the results of elections for the Society's new President, Librarian, Treasurer, and Secretary, who will take office next term.

A Private Club

These are the only student positions in any way comparable to McGill's President of the Students' Society or of the Union. They are not, however, counterparts in any real sense. The Oxford Union is a private club, open to any undergraduate who wants to join and pays thirty shillings $4.50 a term for membership, and the officers are not elected by the student body at large, but only by the members.

Elections are quieter than those at McGill, difficult though this may seem. No posters appear, no campaign speeches are made, and canvassing or soliciting of votes in any way is punished by disqualification of the candidate and a fine of five pounds ($15).

Qualifications Unknown

All candidates for President speak in the debate just prior to the election, and it is primarily on the basis of their speaking ability that they get votes. No one knows and no one seems to ask about their administrative capabilities. For all the voter knows, the candidate for Treasurer may be a confirmed embezzler, the Librarian may be an arsonist, and the Secretary may be illiterate.

Historical Figures

Once elected, the officers are in distinguished company, for a surprisingly high number of past officers have gone on to become famous. Three Prime Ministers have been officers of the Society—Gladstone, Lord Salisbury, and Asquith. Gladstone, indeed, was offered his first seat in Parliament by a peer who liked one of the speeches he had given in the Union.

There have been multitudes of Cabinet Ministers who were once Union officials, including the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Minister of Defence, the Minister of Transport, and the Secretary of State for the Colonies in Sir Antony Eden's Cabinet today.

Three former officers became Governors-General of Canada (Lord Elgin, Lord Dufferin, and Lord Tweedsmuir), while twelve were later heads of Oxford colleges, and nineteen became bishops. Of these, one was a Cardinal in the Roman Catholic Church, and three have been Archbishop of Canterbury.

Debating Society

The Oxford Union Society was founded in 1826 as a debating club, and the weekly debate is still one of the most important of the Union's activities. Every Thursday evening, from 300 to 600 members crowd into the great panelled debating hall. Their guests, who are townspeople, visitors to Oxford, or women students (only men may join the Union) look down from a gallery. The scene resembles history-book drawings of the House of Commons at Westminster (always referred to in the Union as "The Other Place").

Formality

There is a burst of applause as the President marches in with his officers — all in full evening dress — followed by the six main speakers (in dinner jackets). Two of these usually guests, and may be Members of Parliament, distinguished authors, or people well known in other fields.

The minutes are read; other business is dispatched. The debate begins when the Honourable Proposer walks up to the dispatch box (a wooden box on the secretary's table, from which all speaking is done) and starts the show.

Debating Standards

It usually is quite a show. The audience wants to be entertained rather than convinced, and wit takes precedence over argument. The Union's critics claim that this has gone too far, and one must admit that it is a refreshing change when serious topic is given serious discussion. But on the whole the standard of speaking is high, so that whether the debaters plan to argue or to amuse, they do it very well.

By 10:30 pm the main speakers have finished, and the bulk of the audience leaves for the bar, which is open until 11 pm on debate nights, although the usual closing hour in English pubs is 10 pm.

Novice Speakers

But the debate is by no means over. For the next hour and a quarter members get up to make short speeches from the floor. This is the only opportunity offered in the Union for novice speakers to gain experience, and it is on the basis of their performance from the floor in speaking to an almost empty House that the President decides when to invite them to give a speech upon the paper (i.e. a major speech).

I don't know whether or not there are any future bishops or Cabinet Ministers speaking in the Union today. The Oxford Union is no longer the "nursery of British statesmen" that it has been in the past — not because the speakers are necessarily poorer, but because statesmanship is no longer the monopoly of Oxford and Cambridge graduates. But even if its importance to the nation has diminished, it still is and no doubt always will be an important part of Oxford life.

Sir:

. . . At the Students' Council meeting on February 28, the council members expressed a desire to support the McGill SEC in its stand on the plight of Autherine Lucy. In effect the motion put to the Council was that the Macdonald Students' Council desired to lend its moral support to the McGill SEC in any action taken in the encouragement of Autherine Lucy. The Council members are of the opinion that it is everyone's duty to intervene on behalf of this courageous girl.

POST-MORTEM

by Irwin Sankoff

The McGill hockey Redmen placed four men on this year's Inter-collegiate all-star team. Leo "The Cannon" Konyk was a unanimous choice as left-winger on the first dream squad while Brian McCann, Dickie Baltzan and Len Sigurdson were all named to the second team. The first place Varsity Blues took the lion's share of the all-star honors placing four men on the first and two on the second team. U of M had a man on each squad while Laval players failed to win any positions on the teams.

In effect the teams line up as follows:

First Team	Position	Second Team
Al Fleming, Toronto	Goal	Cy Guevremont, U of M
Dave Jackson, Toronto	Defence	Dave Stephen, Toronto
Butch Houle, U of M	Defence	Len Sigurdson, McGill
Don Cossar, Toronto	Centre	Brian McCann, McGill
Ken Linsemen, Toronto	Right Wing	Dick, Baltzan, McGill

The Daily's selections didn't exactly agree with the above choices. We named Guevremont, Stephen and McCann to the first team and had Baltzan tied with Linsemen at the right wing post. Laval's Ray Lavoie was our pick as second team goaler while Houle and Cossar were second squad choices. We didn't name Akitt to the squad, but picked his teammate Brian Anderson as the left winger.

The biggest surprise was the naming of McCann to the second team. McCann is second in scoring in the league, and if the Redmen have a good game Friday night at Verdun, he might easily win the crown. In addition McCann is definitely a better man than Cossar. In the three games we saw Toronto play with the Redmen, whenever McCann and Cossar faced off, it inevitably was McCann who got the draw. In addition McCann has scored more goals than Cossar and is used oftener in a defensive role than the Toronto centre.

Switching over to the scoring statistics, we find that McCann trails Linsemen by four points in the race for the individual scoring title. With Toronto's schedule finished, Linsemen has 31 points to McCann's 27. McCann still has one game to play. Dick Baltzan climbed into third spot in the scoring race as he ran his scoring total to 25 points, including 20 assists, — tops in the league. Cossar of Toronto has 24 points and McGill's Konyk has 23 points. Konyk will probably pass Cossar in the Redmen's final game.

Laval players capitalized on their scoring circus over the weekend as Pierre Raymond, Roger and Michel Lagace all picked up over ten points when the Red and Gold split a pair of game with the Redmen. As a result they hold down the next three places with 23, 21 and 21 points respectively. McGill's Pete Constable rounds out the top nine scorers with an even 20 points. The Redmen's terrific trio of McCann, Baltzan and Konyk is also the highest scoring line in the league having amassed 75 points.

Composite scoring as compiled for the Redmen's exhibition and league games by the MDHWA show that the team's leading scorers are Konyk and McCann, each with 39 points. Leo leads in goals with 23 in 15 games, while McCann has blinked the red light on 18 occasions. Baltzan has 36 points and leads the team in assists with 27. Pete Constable is fourth in team scoring with 27 points.

As the hockey season draws to a close, so does the publishing of the Daily. Once again it is time to put away the Sports statistics and rule books and search our cluttered desk for our school texts. Another year of writing for the Daily is over and it is time to write "thirty" to this column once again. We've had lots of fun down at the sports offices pounding away on the typewriter to turn out this stuff, but all our copy didn't come out of thin air. We would like to take this opportunity to thank all the people who supplied us with material this year, whether it was from watching them participate in either hockey or football games in order to give us something to write about, or from just sitting around at the gym and "chewing the fat".

In particular we would like to thank coach Rocky Robillard and his hockey Redmen. We had a lot of fun together, at Lake Placid, (Continued on Page Four)

EXTRAMURAL FESTIVAL

The Women's Extramural Meet with MacDonald College will be held tonight at Ste. Anne's. This is an annual competition in which the Intramural Archery, Basketball, Badminton, Fencing, Swimming, and Volleyball winners of each college will participate.

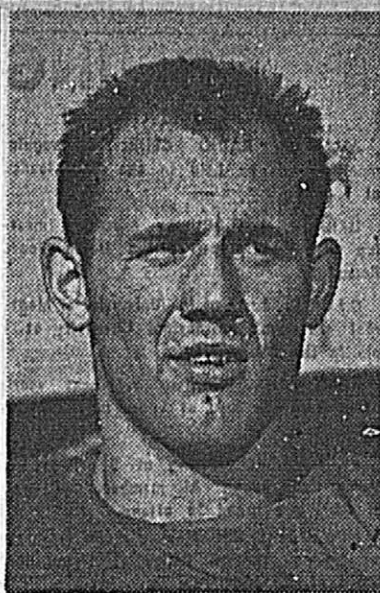

The intramural archery team, consists of Betsy Thomas and Alice Yanosko of Science. Representing the championship badminton team will be Pat Mowat, Arts IV; Liz Loebel, P.Ed. IV; and Ann McNally, P.E. II. The intramural fencing winner and the runner-up are still to be decided.

Phys. Ed. I and II combined to take the intramural swimming championship. Mimi Ellis, Judy Earle, Di Matheson, Judy Rochester, Sheila Roy, Rose Rochman, Fran Lette, and Carol Shetler will represent McGill in this sport.

Traveling as the intramural

Basketball champions are the girls of Phys. Ed. III and IV — Judy Bowman, Wendy Brock, Joan Orser, Anne Mackersy, Betty Muir, Hilary Springs, Judy Lewis, Bren-

ALL STAR HOOP TEAM CHOSEN

The league champion Western Mustangs dominated the first all-star team this year by placing three men on the dream squad. McGill placed no men on the first team and only Don Wright of the Redmen made the second squad.

Everybody's all-star this year was Ray Monnot, the 6 ft. 6 in. centre from Western who won the league scoring championship with an average of better than 25 points per game. He was joined on the first team by teammate Chris Ellis who was elected all-star forward for the third consecutive year, and John Dacyshyn of Toronto whose excellent work around the backboards made him a logical choice.

George Joseph of Assumption and Lou Veres of Western were elected to the guard positions. Joseph is also a three year veteran of the all-star team while Veres won this honour two years ago at Assumption before switching to Mustangs.

There were two surprises in the selection of the team this year and both involved McGill players. One was the selection of Don Wright on the second team. McGill selectors in the poll had placed the sophomore guard on the first squad ahead of Veres on the basis of his 15.8 scoring average

MWSAA OPEN MEETING

The Annual Open Meeting of the M.W.S.A.A. will be held on Thursday, March 8, in the R.V.C. Common room at which time the election of officers for next year's council will take place. The elections of managers is one of the most important phases in the year since the following year's athletic activities will rest with these leaders. It is by means of the manager's enthusiasm and their persistent efforts that the athletic clubs are a success or a failure. The council consists of sixteen managers and it is up to you to elect the managers most capable of fostering greater participation of athletics on the campus.

which was one of the best in the league.

Another surprise involved the failure of Redmen centre Leon DuPlessis to earn a spot on one of the teams. Although big Dupe did not match his championship scoring performance of last year, his 13.4 average ranked him among the top seven scorers in the league and his rebounding work was certainly at a par with any performer in the league with the exception of Dacyshyn and Monnot. Daily selectors had placed DuPlessis as their first forward choice on the second team, replacing Connorton on it.

Auditions Tonight For Workshop Group

Members of the Radio Workshop will be auditioned in announcing and engineering by Radio Station CFCF at the Station's Cote des Neiges studios tonight at 8 pm.

This is the fourth year such auditions have been given, and for the past three years after a season of practical and theoretical training worthy members have been placed in radio stations across the country. Many of them have gone on to make radio their career and have earned themselves big names in the entertainment field.

The judges include Station manager J. A. Hammond, who designed and supervised the course; Richard Misener, Assistant Manager; Dean Kaye, one of Canada's top news commentators; and J. C. Douglas, chief Engineer of Canada's largest technical staff.

Hillel Elections To Take Place

Elections for the officers of the Hillel Foundation for 1956-57 will take place this week at Hillel House, 3460 Stanley Street, on Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, March 7, 8 and 9.

Candidates for the position of vice-president are: Nundi Gewurz B.A. 2, Norman Samuels B.A. 2, George Schafer B.Sc. 2, Howard Tanenbaum B.Sc. 3; for secretary: Vivian Rapoport B.A. 2 and Ruth Wertman B.A. 2; for treasurer: Danny Boghen B.A. 2 and Irwin Kornbluth B.Sc. 3.

Norman May, B.A. 3, has been elected president by acclamation.

'Informal' Sponsored By National Clubs

The "National Clubs Informal" will be held in the Union Ball Room on Friday, March 9, at 9 pm.

This year the Cosmopolitan, German, French, Hellenic, Spanish and West Indian Clubs have joined forces to sponsor an evening of continuous entertainment.

Lord Caresser, the calypso king from Trinidad, will be providing the West India touch, and he will be alternating with Irv Brooks and his dance orchestra to provide the evening's entertainment.

Toronto, Verdun and the Forum. Whether they won or lost, they always gave everything they had and never let up, both on and off the ice. Those fellows have nothing to gain by playing for McGill, except perhaps the odd headline in the Daily. They play strictly for the fun of it and are perhaps the only true amateurs in the world. In addition to being friends they are great athletes. It is for these reasons that we have never criticized any of the players for a mistake or lapse they made that might have been fatal. We can recall one game this year where a bad play by one of the Redmen lost the game. Robillard had no harsh words for the player and by the same token we felt that we had no right to print it in the Daily. Of course a special thanks must go out to Rocky. One of the grandest guys you'll ever meet, Rocky has always supplied us with a wealth of information, both about this year's squads and on those on which he played in the past. We are looking forward to working with him again next year.
